

Does IPOB still matter?

Do you have a PVC?

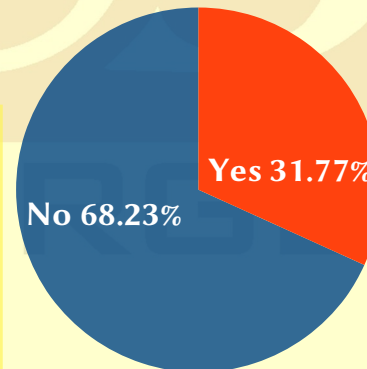

If you have a PVC, are you going to vote?

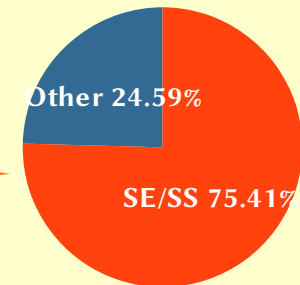

If you are not voting, is it because of IPOB's declaration?

Are you travelling to vote?

If you travel, to what region?

On 5 and 6 February, SBM performed a dipstick survey of Igbo speaking traders in markets around Lagos and Abuja. The total sample size was 322. The survey was performed to get a bird's eye view of attitudes of the target respondents towards the recent announcement by the Indigenous People of Biafra regarding the 2019 elections. 88 (27.3%) of the respondents were in Abuja, 234 (72.7%) were in Lagos. The markets sampled include Apo, Lugbe, Nyanya and Wuse in Abuja; and Alaba, Computer Village, Idumota, Oshodi and Sango in the Lagos area. Respondents were approached, and the first question put to them after establishing their ethnicity, was if they had a Permanent Voter's Card. Only five questions were asked. The responses are given in this infograph, and we are leaving it to the reader to draw his conclusions.
